About the Huizenga School

The Huizenga School is the only business school in the nation with entrepreneurship in its name. That says a lot about who we are, a school committed to delivering an up-to-date curriculum that fosters the spirit of innovative thinking in the workplace. Here, you'll learn to face critical issues of today and tomorrow, head on.

Nearly 30 years ago, when few other institutions considered customers' needs, the Huizenga School endeavored to accommodate working professionals by creating both weekend and field-based programs. Today, that tradition continues. The Huizenga School serves more than 4,400 bachelor's, master's, and doctoral students in a variety of degree programs tailored to meet the demands of today's workforce. The Huizenga School also offers a range of optional specializations and concentrations as well as a number of enriching seminars and workshops through the Hudson Institute of Entrepreneurship and Executive Education. The newest addition to the Huizenga School's executive education portfolio is the International Institute for Franchise Education (IIFE).

Another of the Huizenga School's unique features is its ability to tailor delivery of its master's degree programs to the particular needs of corporations. The Huizenga School has offered master's degree programs within firms including American Express; AT&T; BellSouth; Federal Express; Lucent Technologies; Nabi; Royal Caribbean Cruise Lines; Salomon Brothers, Inc; Sears, Roebuck & Co.; and Westinghouse Savannah River Company, Inc.

Administrators and faculty members are keenly attuned to the complicated demands placed on today's employees, managers, and leaders. Courses are continually refined to the most current and relevant practices. Students at the Huizenga School encounter some of the most exciting, enriching coursework available anywhere in education today. Courses are designed to challenge critical-thinking skills, to widen perspectives on traditional business practices, and to foster an entrepreneurial spirit.

The Huizenga School is now housed in a five-story, state-of-the-art facility on NSU's main campus. Named for entrepreneur Carl DeSantis, the 261,000-square-foot building provides easy access to NSU's extraordinary technological and academic resources, and demonstrates the school's growth and innovation.
